A metaphor says one thing IS another to create a strong picture (e.g. "the classroom was a zoo").

High-Five Tips for Parents & Teachers

Let your child choose a topic they genuinely feel strongly about — real conviction makes writing more persuasive.

Encourage words like 'believe', 'should' and 'because' to sound convincing.

Ask 'why?' after each reason to help them add more detail.

Read it back and ask: 'Would this convince someone who disagrees?'

A strong closing sentence repeats the opinion in a new way — practise this together.
